Tobias, January 3, 2009

So often the oversoul will create an expression of itself into the human realms, but then will maintain a distance from it. So often the oversoul creates the human entity and then finds it difficult to connect with it. The veil definitely goes two ways. Sometimes the oversoul doesn't want to interfere with the human existence of itself; other times it fears getting too close and getting sucked into this thing called human reality; other times parts of the oversoul are so wounded and twisted, remaining in the near Earth realms, caught in their own horrors and their own hell, that they are somewhat oblivious to this thing called the human living on Earth.

Tobias, January 3, 2009

Being bi-present is allowing yourself to be in multiple dimensions and realities in a single time. Instead of having to hop around from different points of presence or different reality levels, being bi-present means that you allow all the different dimensions to come into convergence at the same point – the Point of Presence.

Tobias, January 3, 2009

Don't look at your life like you would look at a broken down, dirty house. Make no judgments about it. Invite your soul, your divine, in as a guest of honor. Invite it in without making excuses, without saying you're going to fix this or fix that later, without saying that you meant to clean up first, without making apologies or excuses. And as your soul beckons you to join itself, its integrated self, take that bold and daring move. Take that step to join it, to join yourself, your soul, in the other realms, in the other dimensions. The other dimensions don't have to be a million miles from here. They're a half a breath away. Allow yourself to be so trusting that you can open yourself to join the soul of you.

Tobias, January 3, 2009

Let's talk about predictions for this coming year, and I would like to start this with hearing from you! I would like a number of you to give a short concise feeling about the energies of this coming year from more of a global perspective. What does this next year hold? I would like somebody to keep a list of what is brought out here, and I would like the list to be expanded through your Internet where others can contribute to it. I'd like this list posted and kept in this sacred safe space called crimsoncircle.com for all of you to look at during the year and to find out, to understand how truly wise you are.

Tobias, January 3, 2009

What lies ahead for 2009? Perhaps it's not exciting or dramatic, but it's very noteworthy. We're going to call it the year of weather. The reason is quite simple: as consciousness is changing and New Energy is coming in, Old Energy is going out. Old stuck energy in the Earth itself is shifting and leaving. Bodies that were buried hundreds, thousands and ten thousands of years ago are now departing. Gaia, the planet herself, the energy and the essence of the planet is departing, turning over responsibility for this grand planet to the humans who inhabit it. There's a cleansing at the deepest level of Earth right now and that translates into major weather changes on Earth.

Tobias, January 3, 2009

The weather on Earth also helps in a very interesting way of sharing consciousness and energies all around the world. It used to be the single most important method of bringing consciousness from one culture or one part of the world to the other. That is how it was possible for there to be an invention in China 10,000 years ago, and at a very similar timeframe on the other side of the world for that same invention. The weather was used as the deliverer of consciousness, and it still is. The weather on Earth is going to be carrying a new message to the plants, the animals, the Earth and the water – and you're going to be part of it. You're going to feel very, very connected to the weather. It is the carrier of new consciousness into the deep layers and levels of Earth in this next year.

Tobias, January 3, 2009

The weather is going to perplex scientists and those who study its patterns, and they're going to wonder why the shifts in the magnetic poles are changing on a very erratic basis, as well as the intensity or the magnetic pull to Earth. Both the magnetic poles are going to be shifting, and the strength – or the lack of strength – of the gravitational pull on Earth is going to change this year, and it's going to be erratic. It's going to change in every part of the Earth, and every biological aspect of the Earth is going to feel it, but most will not understand what is going on.

Tobias, January 3, 2009

This could be defined as THE year of opportunity for Shaumbra and for anybody who's integrated their spiritual wisdom with their human existence. There will be more opportunity for you to start your business; do your healing in your way; teach what you have to share; be Standards for other humans and beacons of light for those who are in distress. There will be more opportunity for you to bring your dreams to Earth, to manifest them here and to have joy in living them out. There'll be more opportunities for abundance in your life. There will be more opportunities than ever before to invite your essence, your divine, your true Self to join you in this experience called life on Earth. This is the year of opportunity.

Tobias, January 3, 2009

The question I ask each and every one of you is do you choose to live in the world of chaos, drama and storms, or the world of abundance, opportunity and joy? Can you take that deep breath before you get out of bed, in joy for the day no matter what it holds? Can you sing the song of joy that you're here in a physical body on Earth, sing the song of life, even if life should end later that day? Can you sing the song of relationships, good and bad, because they all gave you something? Can you open up and connect with the angelic beings who are all around you? Can you have such joy in your life that you give up the struggle, that you allow abundance in? Can you bring your dreams into your reality, your soul into your life? Can you allow yourself to be part of your soul as well? Which world do you choose to live in this year?

More water rationing, higher produce costs predicted — mild January pushes state into 3rd straight dry year

By Kelly Zito
CHRONICLE STAFF WRITER

California teeters on the edge of the worst drought in the state's history, officials said Thursday after reporting that the Sierra Nevada snowpack — the backbone of the state's water supply — is only 61 percent of normal.

January usually douses California with about 20 percent of the state's annual precipitation, but instead it delivered a string of dry, sunny days this year, almost certainly pushing the state into a third year of drought.

The arid weather is occurring as the state's water system is under pressure from a growing population, an aging infrastructure and court-ordered reductions in water pumped through the Sacramento-San Joaquin River Delta — problems that didn't exist or were less severe during similar dry spells in the late 1970s and late 1980s.

"We're definitely in really bad shape," said Elissa Lynn, chief meteorologist with the state Department of Water Resources. "People can expect to pay higher prices for produce . . . and more agencies may be rationing . . . some raising fees. We just don't

Tips for saving water

With the state heading for drought, here's what you can do:

INDOORS

Toilets: Replace older toilets with high-efficiency ones.

Showers: Install shower heads that use no more than 2.5 gallons of water per minute.

Washing: When showering, wet body, turn off water, apply soap, and turn on water to rinse.

Food: Wash fruits and vegetables in a bowl of water.

Leaks: Fix leaky faucets and toilets that run.

OUTDOORS

Watering: Do it less often and more deeply.

Irrigation: Use drip irrigation.

Plant choice: Select plants adapted to Mediterranean climates.

Mulch: Apply mulch to gardens to maintain moisture in soil.

BEIJING, China (CNN) -- China is suffering another natural disaster -- this time, the worst drought in half a century. The land is parched and the irrigation dams have dried up. Crops and livestock are dying.

AFP/GETTY IMAGES

Water levels in some Chinese rivers are well below their average with 50 to 80 percent less rain than last year.

China on Thursday raised the drought-emergency-alert level from orange to red and allocated an additional $44 million dollars on top of the $13 million in emergency aid already released.

Since November northern and central China has had little rain. Many places have not had rainfall for more than 100 days.

"The extent of drought is quite extensive, the impact is quite great," forecaster Zhang Peiqun said in an interview with state television CCTV. "Rainfall on average has been 50 to 80 percent less than that of last year."

China has been hit by a string of natural disasters in the last year. In addition to the drought, Chinese officials have had to battle back against a brutal winter that stranded millions and a deadly earthquake that killed tens of thousands.

In the drought, more than 4.3 million residents face a shortage of drinking water, as do 2 million livestock.

(CNN) -- Blistering temperatures and winds battered parts of the upper Midwest Tuesday, delivering some states the coldest weather in decades.

A chilling cold front is battering the upper Midwest and Great Lakes.

On the heels of a blizzard that barreled into the Northern Plains, temperatures dropped to minus 18 degrees Fahrenheit in Minneapolis, Minnesota.

In Hayward, Wisconsin, a man who was prone to sleepwalking died after exposure to the freezing temperatures there, according to CNN affiliate KDLH-TV in Duluth, Wisconsin.

Authorities said the man's son reported him missing around noon Tuesday. Police told KDLH they found bare footprints leading from the man's home to 190 feet away.

For Tony Williams, the temperature in Minneapolis was more than his body could handle.

(CNN) -- The brutal winter storm that caused havoc from Texas to Maine has paralyzed swaths of Kentucky, now working to cope with what it says is the worst power outage in the state's history.

Andrew Melnykovich, spokesman for Kentucky's Public Service Commission, said it's "an indescribable mess everywhere."

Larry Holeman, deputy emergency management director of rural Grayson County, called his hard-hit community "a war zone."

The emergency reflects the challenges faced in states such as Kentucky, where many rural and remote regions struggle to keep warm and dry under dire weather conditions.

Nine weather-related deaths have been reported, with two confirmed, said the office of Gov. Steve Beshear. A previously confirmed death has since been found to be nonweather-related.

The storm caused the largest power outage in Kentucky's history, with more 607,000 customers out of power.

Massive flooding in western Washington

Buzz Bernard, Sr. Meteorologist, The Weather Channel

West | View Regional Video

A sharp Pacific cold front will punch into the Interior West Thursday finally bringing an end to the heavy rain in western Washington and causing snow levels to plunge.

Showers, however, will continue west of the Cascades, while heavy snow falls in the Cascades with snow levels nose-diving to around 1500 feet by afternoon.

Still, the damage will have been done with major and record river flooding likely in western Washington.

Farther east, heavy snow will coat the mountains of Idaho and western Montana. Areas of rain, snow and freezing rain will plague eastern Montana.

Rain and mountain snow showers should extend southward into northern California and northern Nevada.

Strong, gusty winds will whip over locations in the immediate lee of the Rockies from Montana to Colorado.

The Southwest and Colorado Rockies will remain mostly dry.

High temperatures are predicted to range from the 30s across the northern Rockies to the low and mid-70s in southeast California and southern Arizona.

Thousands flee fire

12:50 a.m. The Olde Stage Road Fire has scorched its seventh building and is threatening homes along Olde Stage Road.

Firefighters are also evacuating 391 homes to the west of the road including Boulder Heights, Lazy Acres and the north side of Lee Hill Road in the foothills.

All evacuation orders were likely to stand through at least mid-morning today, officials said.

Forecast winds could continue to cause problems for firefighters again today, and damaged power poles could pose a threat.

January 21, 2009: Did you know a solar flare can make your toilet stop working?

That's the surprising conclusion of a NASA-funded study by the National Academy of Sciences entitled Severe Space Weather Events — Understanding Societal and Economic Impacts. In the 132-page report, experts detailed what might happen to our modern, high-tech society in the event of a "super solar flare" followed by an extreme geomagnetic storm. They found that almost nothing is immune from space weather—not even the water in your bathroom.

The problem begins with the electric power grid.

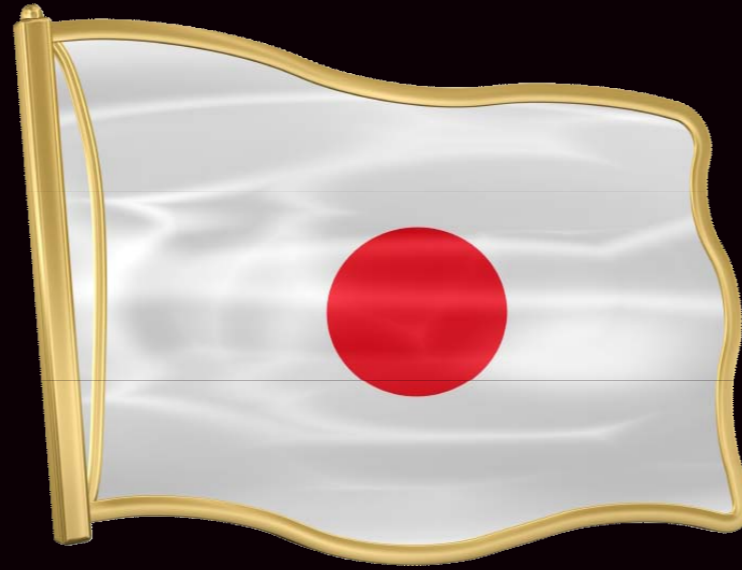

"Electric power is modern society's cornerstone technology on which virtually all other infrastructures and services depend," the report notes. Yet it is particularly vulnerable to bad space weather. Ground currents induced during geomagnetic storms can actually melt the copper windings of transformers at the heart of many power distribution systems. Sprawling power lines act like antennas, picking up the currents and spreading the problem over a wide area. The most famous geomagnetic power outage happened during a space storm in March 1989 when six million people in Quebec lost power for 9 hours: image.

According to the report, power grids may be more vulnerable than ever. The problem is interconnectedness. In recent years, utilities have joined grids together to allow long-distance transmission of low-

Channeling the Big Picture

Welcome to a different kind of a management consultancy service. What you are going to read, throughout this website, will go beyond what is considered 'normal' in business standards. Channeling is a remarkable and efficient process to add clarity in both business and career situations.

My name is Tommi Mäkelä, and my expertise is through going beyond concepts that a mind can handle, opening up the consciousness, and helping my clients to realise the bigger, metaphysical picture. Through channeling, I connect with the energy and wisdom of Saint Germain, and bring clarity and suggestions to all types of business and career situations. A client's higher self will also participate in the process, which goes beyond restricted, mental solutions. Based on these verbally channeled messages, I help create solutions and solve specific issues associated with traditional consultancy methods.

You are probably thinking, can this all be real? Well, it is if you allow it to be.
